

	Page.
May appear to actions of ejectment, &c. that would before have abated by the death of a party—1801, ch. 74, sec. 38,	463
Proceedings in the county courts against heirs by scire facias, where resident in another county than that where the judgment was entered—1812, ch. 145, sec. 1,	611
Same, from the court of appeals on judgments therein, or from the late general court, where they may be resident in another county than that where the original defendant resided—1812, ch. 145, sec. 2,	612
Writs of capias ad respondendum , how to be issued against heirs from one county to another—1812, ch. 145, sec. 3,	612
Proceedings authorized by, and process for heirs in suits not abating by the death of a party—1815, ch. 149, sec. 4,	632

HEIR-LOOMS.

Not to be assets in the hands of an executor or administrator—1798, ch. 101, sub ch. 7,	389
---	-----

HOG STEALERS.

Persons killing any unmarked swine above three months old, not on their own land, or with their own stock, shall be adjudged hog stealers, and be liable to restore fourfold, and to be punished by pillory and whipping—1715, ch. 26, sec. 5,	12
Persons concealing or disfiguring the marks of swine killed, by cutting off their ears, &c. to be adjudged hog stealers—1715, ch. 26, sec. 13,	13
See Crimes and Punishments.

HOMICIDE.

See CRIMES AND PUNISHMENTS.

HOMINE REPLEGIANDO.

In writs of, the record may be transmitted for trial to the county where the ancestor was held in bondage, &c.—1810, ch. 63,	559
--	-----

HORSES.

Fences to be five feet high, and the owners of horses, &c. to keep them in sufficient enclosures—1715, ch. 31, sec. 1,	17
Horses, &c. breaking into any field, may be shot, on neglect of the owners to keep them up, on notice being twice given—1715, ch. 31, sec. 2,	17
But the injured person not to kill them unless on his enclosed grounds—1715, ch. 31, sec. 3,	17
Penalty on taking and keeping, or riding or working, any man's horse—1715, ch. 31, sec. 5,	18
Directions for carrying stray horses before a magistrate, &c.—1715, ch. 31, sec. 4,	18
Respecting horses and colts found loose, and brood mares kept in the woods—1715, ch. 31, sec. 12, 13, 14,	19